YOUR SMART WORLD

Digitisation is a major economic driver. It gives people completely new ways of interacting with each other and provides access to an enormous source of information.

More and more of your customers expect digital solutions in their daily lives. If you can interact with your bank or telephone provider online and at any time, you naturally want to be able to do the same when it comes to sorting out housing-related matters. Housing providers can now use digital services to launch innovative business models and empower their customers.

Aareon Smart World offers a comprehensive portfolio that enables collaboration between all parties involved. It is a holistic system that achieves end-to-end integration of the customers, employees and business partners of housing companies as well as of the technical equipment installed in apartments and buildings. Adding value by lowering costs, making the dialogue between customer and housing-company employees more convenient and offering an array of other services and advantageous new business models.

Aareon Smart World solutions have the greatest effect when they are used in combination. The lack of barriers between individual solutions ensures that the digitally supported processes interlock seamlessly, providing for optimised co-operation and good relations between landlords/managers, tenants/owners and service partners.
